CERTIFIED COACH TRAINING through IWCC:

Some coaches decide to pursue an ICF (International Coach Federation) credential. You can choose to become an ICF Member for $245 per year plus 60 hours of approved training (which can be 48 tele-class or in-person hours + 12 self-study hours) instead of or in combination with your ICF Credential. About 40% of the 20,000 global ICF members currently hold an ICF credential though in 2013 the ICF awarded 25% more credentials than the year prior.

ICF ACSTH / APPROVED COACH TRAINING HOURS:

IWCC's Foundational Tele-classes give you 48 ICF ACSTH Approved Tele-class Coach Training Hours plus even more self-study hours; all of which are accepted by the International Coach Federation (ICF) for coaches applying for an ICF credential.

The ICF offers three levels of credentialing:

ACC - (Associate): 60 hours coach training (only 12 can be self-study and 48 must be "live", such as a teleclass or in-person coach training hours); a majority must be on the ICF Core Competencies, 100 hours coaching others, 10 hours being coached by an ICF PCC or MCC coach

PCC - (Professional): 125 hours coach training (only 25 can be self-study and 100 must be "live" (tele-class or in-person) coach training hours; a majority must be on the ICF Core Competencies, 750 hours coaching others, 10 hours being coached by an ICF PCC or MCC coach

MCC - (Master): 200 hours coach training (only 40 can be self-study and 160 must be "live" (tele-class or in-person), coach training hours; a majority must be on the ICF Core Competencies), 2,500 hours coaching others
